Global mind. Local heart.

Are you looking to sell your company?

Do you want to invest in your people, technologies and facilities but are limited by investment funding?

Would you like to be part of a decentralised structure that allows you to be responsible for your business but offers access to global growth opportunities?

Wanting to sell and step away from the business knowing there's a parent company who will expertly manage your team and business for you?

Join us and secure your ambitions

“ Years of development across our M&A programme has enabled us to gain a wealth of experience and expertise when adding new companies to our group.

We fully value people and the business culture developed within each organisation and we recognise this makes every company unique.

Our main focus is to offer every company the opportunity to learn from each other, to utilise the power of the group to grow and develop each individual business, while offering financial backing from the overall group. Evidence shows that our extensive product range and access to new markets strengthens all our new and existing companies.

Lesjöfors is constantly expanding its operation, with a focus on springs and pressings. Adding new companies, within our dedicated sector, is an important part of our growth strategy. It could be an important part of yours too.

Who are we?

We are one of the world's leading groups in the spring and pressing sector. We are your global partner. A parent company that is ambitious and dedicated to investing in, growing, supporting and developing spring and pressing manufacturers.

The Lesjöfors Group is the oldest, most respected and experienced supplier of springs, wire, and strip components. Established in 1675, with spring manufacture commencing in 1852, our products are relied on by every industry, everywhere.

BEIJER • ALMA

We have 60+ production and technical sales offices across Europe, America and Asia and we are looking to acquire more to extend our capabilities and geographic reach. Beijer Alma, a family-controlled listed company on the Swedish Stock Exchange, is the parent company behind the Lesjöfors Group.

We invite manufacturers to join our rapidly growing group; to complement our expertise with their additional niche products and skills which, when married with our strengths, will generate additional benefits and synergies to the group and to the acquired companies.

What we can do for you?

Our extensive network, dedicated resources, commitment, market insights and collective experience has repeatedly proven to be a competitive advantage to the companies we support.

Our decentralised structure enables relationships with employees, customers and suppliers to stay in their local markets. By joining the Lesjöfors Group, your business is run by your team and yet can access the strength of the entire groups global market presence. This includes an extensive product portfolio, experience and expertise across specialised customer segments and investments in R&D as well as ongoing support across HR, IT, Sustainability, Marketing and Finance.

Our teams are motivated, entrepreneurial and highly technical across all production and commercial operations, offering peak potential for your business.

We are significant investors in advanced technologies and as a global leader in spring and pressing manufacture, we invest in the highest quality and precision manufacturing processes to maximise results.

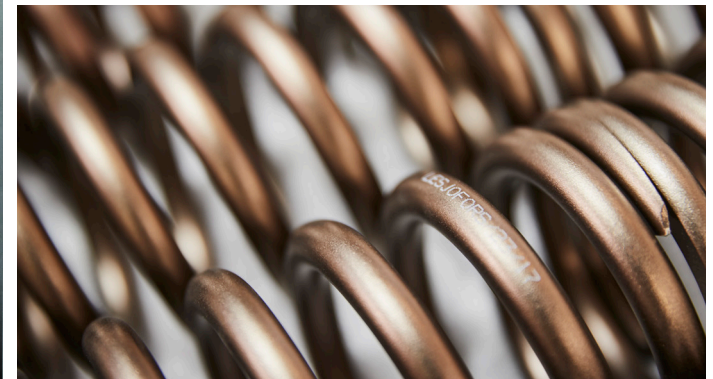

We believe that collaboration is key to successful, long-term relationships, optimising the potential for commercial and operational synergies and because of this, year on year, we have posted exceptional results.

LESJÖFORS

Springs & Pressings

Lesjöfors Springs America (LSA) is an industry leader in the design and manufacture of custom engineered flat mechanical springs and spring assemblies, specialising in constant force, constant torque, hair and power springs and reels. LSA was originally established in 1926 in New York, by Sandvik Materials Technology, moved to Pennsylvania in 1971 and expanded to two sites in 1989, through the strategic addition of the Nogales, Mexico operation. Lesjöfors acquired the Mexico and USA sites in 2015.

Brandy Davies, CEO of LSA says:
"Over the decades, it was a struggle to support global growth initiatives, world class production capabilities and design services, when competing for investment dollars with the previous owners core business. Since the Lesjöfors purchase, we have received significant investment in our business, expanded our product offering, been able to capitalise on synergies through the Lesjöfors group and gained instant support from their global sales team – supporting growth initiatives in Europe and Asia."

Core achievements since the Lesjöfors acquisition

The USA site has relocated to a brand new, state of the art facility, increasing production and office space by 50%

Technical bench strengths have advanced by 150% with specific expansions in the product and process engineering teams.

Alcomex

Opmeer, Holland

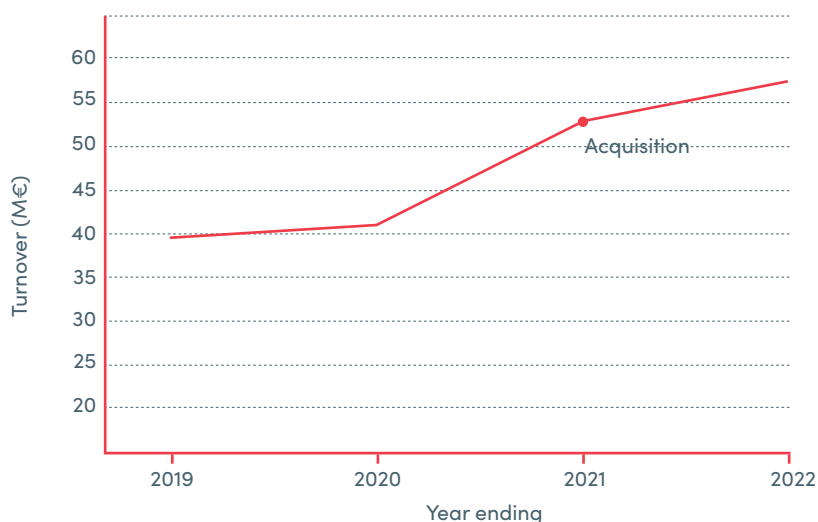

Founded in 1992, the Alcomex Group is Europe's leading customer centric supplier of highly specialised overhead garage door springs and a premium manufacturer of industrial springs across numerous markets.

With production operations in the Netherlands, the Czech Republic, Poland and India and sales offices in Netherlands, Germany, France, Spain, Romania, Czech Republic, Slovakia and Poland, the premier multi-site organisation culturally and commercially complemented the Lesjöfors Group and was acquired in 2021.

The acquisition expanded Alcomex's global reach, offered extensive cross-selling, purchasing and other value-adding opportunities - including technology and innovation sharing - and enabled Lesjöfors to build on its ambition to become the number one global spring, wire and flat strip component group.

Jelle van Vliet and Conrad Hietink, Managing Directors of Alcomex: "Prior to becoming a division of Lesjöfors, we were on a growth trajectory that saw our customer base and revenues almost triple in the last six years. We knew partnering with the Lesjöfors Group would add additional strength to our cross-sell, production, purchasing and technology capability and our acquisition clearly demonstrates the confidence we have in the Lesjöfors brand."

John Evans' Sons

Pennsylvania, USA

America's oldest springmaker, John Evans' Sons, was acquired by Lesjöfors in July 2022. An international leader with proven expertise in precision constant force springs, spiral torsion springs, power springs and spring-powered reels, alongside helical springs, vibration isolators, wire forms, stampings and mechanical assemblies, John Evans' holds a dominant position within the medical sector as well as being a key supplier to leading multinationals across manufacturing, construction, aerospace and transport industries.

Pate Banmiller, Managing Director says: "Our heritage is tremendously important to us and we know Lesjöfors feels the same about their spring legacy. By joining forces and becoming a unified brand under the Lesjöfors umbrella, our values are synergised and we both benefit from each other's success.

We are now able to access Lesjöfors' expertise and geographic reach to expand our own capabilities and the Lesjöfors group significantly strengthens its presence in the USA.

Together we can move closer to achieving the ambition of being the number one spring manufacturer in the world."

The acquisition also delivers new opportunities for enhanced profitable growth through commercial and production efficiencies via coordinated purchasing plans, cross-selling, knowledge sharing and development projects with other Lesjöfors American subsidiaries.
